

FIRM DIAGNOSTIC

O'Connor & Drew's has been servicing the automobile dealership industry for almost 70 years and our experience within the industry is unparalleled among our competitors. All areas of the auto dealership business are unique; from new and used vehicle sales, to parts, service, and body shop, to finance and insurance, each posing a complex set of challenges that need to be accurately and systematically addressed.

Our automotive dealership practice is very familiar with the numerous business challenges faced by auto dealers and we offer our more than 300 dealership clients a full-range of accounting service options, professional advice, and innovative solutions to help their businesses to thrive in the short-term, and grow year over year in the long-term.

Often operating five or more business units under one roof that require individualized attention, auto dealers not only have to worry about hiring and retaining the right personnel but also need to ensure that accurate accounting and financial systems are firmly in place to manage internal controls and operational processes in order to avoid the misappropriation of assets, avoid fraudulent financial reporting, and reduce the risk of control deficiencies.

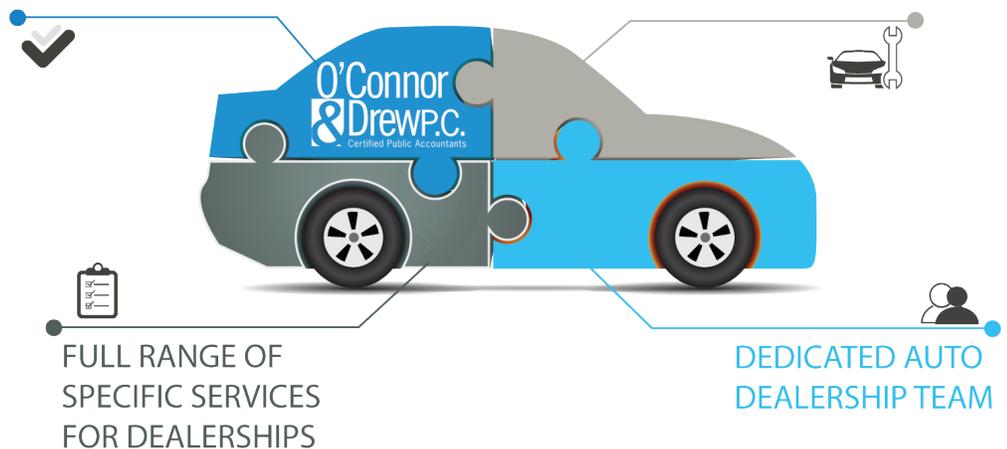

Let O'Connor & Drew, P.C. help protect your dealership, maximize current and future business opportunities, and partner with you to achieve financial success.

THE AUTO DEALERSHIP EXPERTS

O'Connor & Drew's Automobile Dealership Practice has been servicing the automobile dealership industry for over 60 years. Our passion for automobile dealerships is the hallmark of our commitment to the industry. We have built our firm based on the trust and integrity we have earned from dealerships of all sizes throughout the country. Most dealerships operate five to six business units under one roof. Each of these businesses: new vehicle sales, used vehicle sales, parts, service, body shop, finance and insurance, have a distinct set of complex challenges for the dealer that require specialized services. O'Connor & Drew offers a breadth of services and creative solutions to maximize business opportunities and solve specific problems.
